Beauty may be in the eye of the beholder, but Miura Golf's new Series 1957 putters are the most beautiful golf clubs we've ever seen. Japanese manufacturer Miura Golf has been making high-quality forged irons for 43 years. The 2009 putter models—whose Series 1957 monkier pays homage to the company's roots and longevity—are the KM 350, a classic blade (pictured), and the MP 005 and MP 006 which both offer a more contemporary design. Miura putters are all handmade and undergo the same forging process as the renowned irons. Each putter also features a milled face that reduces skid while providing precise distance control. An oiled-chrome finish and soft profile make this putter a classic beauty. $390. miuragolf.com
